

universität
wien

Institut for
Classical Archaeology

MIGMAG

European Research Council
Established by the European Commission

Regional Migration and the Making of the Ancient Greek World

A conference of the ERC project: ‚MIGMAG‘
6-8th June, 2024

Institute for Classical Archaeology,
University of Vienna

This conference highlights how local and regional mobilities contributed to the making of the wider Greek world. The ancient Greek world was a culturally integrated but geographically dispersed entity, comprising over a thousand autonomous communities scattered across the Mediterranean and the Black Sea. Scholarship has usually focused on long-distance migration as the key to its formation, characterising this either as colonisation or in terms of trade and interaction. In contrast, relatively little attention has been paid to the role played by local and regional mobilities in the formation of new settlements and settlement systems c.1200-500 BCE.

This conference will seek to redress the balance. Using insights from landscape archaeology in particular, we will compare evidence for urbanisation, population circulation, changing settlement patterns, and variation in landscape use, and consider how these contributed to the making of the early Greek world.

Thursday 6th June

9:00-13:30 – Italy and Sicily

Gianfranco Adornato, Scuola Normale Superiore, Pisa

Peter Attema, University of Groningen

Rodolfo Brancato, University of Naples

Lieve Donnellan, University of Melbourne

Antonino Facella, University of Genoa

Fabrizio Mollo, University of Messina

Alessandro Naso, University of Naples

Marco Pacciarelli, University of Naples

Francesco Quondam, University of Vienna

15:00-17:30 – The Western Mediterranean

Anna Depalmas, University of Sassari

Elisa de Sousa, University of Lisbon

Linda Gosner, Texas Tech University

Carolina López-Ruiz, University of Chicago

Jessica Nowlin, University of Texas

18:30-19:30 – The Work of the MIGMAG Project

Naoise Mac Sweeney, University of Vienna

Friday 7th June

9:30-13:30 – Anatolia and the Black Sea

Christoph Bachhuber, University of Oxford

Owen Doonan, California State University

Bilge Hürmüzlü, Süleyman Demirel University

Elif Koparal, Mimar Sinan University

Michele Massa, Bilkent University

Jana Mokrišová, University of Cambridge

Anja Slawisch, Edinburgh University

Martin Steskal, Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften

Semih Togan, Süleyman Demirel University

15:00-17:30 – The Eastern Mediterranean

Anna Collar, Southampton University

Maria Iacovou, University of Cyprus

Naoise Mac Sweeney, University of Vienna

Tom Maltas, University of Vienna and Oxford

Mirko Novák, University of Bern

James Osborne, University of Chicago

Tevfik Emre Şerifoğlu, Mimar Sinan University

Elif Ünlü, Boğaziçi University

Saturday 8th June

9:00-13:00 – Greece

Birgitta Eder, Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften (Athen)

Sylvian Fachard, University of Lausanne

Stefanos Gimatzidis, Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften

Efthymia Karantzali, Ephorate of Antiquities of Fthiotida and Eurytania

Eleni Kopanaki, University of Vienna

Petros Kounouklas, Ephorate of Antiquities of Fthiotida and Eurytania

Sara Murray, University of Toronto

Maximillian Rönnerberg, University of Tübingen

Katja Sporn, Deutsches Archäologisches Institut

Institute for Classical Archaeology |
University of Vienna |
Franz Klein-Gasse 1 |
1190 Wien

<https://klass-archaeologie.univie.ac.at> |
<https://www.migmag-erc.eu/conference-2024>

